

Barack Obama

November 3, 2007

Step It Up 2007

Dear Friends,

I commend Step It Up for its grassroots awareness and activism campaign because stopping catastrophic global climate change is the great challenge of our generation. We have to act decisively, we have to act now, and we have to act together.

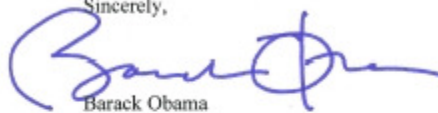

You know what has to be done, and we share the same goals: investing in green energy and the people who are going to invent and produce the next generation of fuels and renewable electricity; reducing carbon emissions by 80% by 2050; aggressively reducing emissions from coal plants.

Step It Up is taking this movement to the streets of America. Only the power of millions of voices united for change can unseat the forces that have prevented progress for decades. I look forward to working with you to meet our common goals.

To read more about my accomplishments and my plans to stop global warming, please visit barackobama.com/issues/energy.

Thank you for actively supporting a cleaner future. I look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Barack Obama

